

SIX IN FAREWELL . . . Six seniors at Whitman will be making farewell appearances at Whitman Theater during performances of the Shakespearean play, "All's Well That Ends Well," slated for weekend opening. Seniors in the 25-member cast are Anne Huey, Maureen O'Reilly and Otis Calef, all of whom are drama majors, Gwynne Johnson, Jill Owens Esser and Greg Wilson, English majors . . . Wilson, of Ellensburg, has been admitted to New York University Drama School as result of an audition in San Francisco. He is one of 120 admitted following auditions held in several major cities in the country . . . Miss O'Reilly of Seattle, daughter of Mrs. Paul O'Reilly and the late Paul O'Reilly, onetime Walla Wallans, is admitted to Tulane University Drama School in New Orleans and Otis Calef. Independence, Ore., to the University of Texas Drama School at Austin.

craft as the one Broughton was flying.

Extreme weather conditions were a factor in that flight also.

Broughton, 30, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Broughton, Sr. and member of a prominent Columbia County family. His wife, the former Mary Ellen Gowing, 29, is the daughter of the R. R. Gowings. Both families live in Dayton.

Broughton was born and raised in Dayton, attended elementary school there, graduated from a private high school in Seattle. He attended Washington State University and served as a naval air crewman during the Korean conflict.

Mrs. Broughton was a graduate of Whitman College.

Funeral services for the four will be at 11 a.m. Friday at the Methodist Church in Dayton. The Rev. Donald MacNeil of the Dayton Congregational Church will officiate. Interment will be in the Dayton City Cemetery.

---

Columbus died in ignorance of